To those of you in the College who have not had the blessed opportunity to participate in the Summer Camp program at Pack Forest, Warrensburg, we hope "Warrensburg is..." will give you some insight into the five-week journey into the woods. For those who have attended, this article should bring back some memories, however good or bad, of your stay at the camp. The editors hope that no one is offended by the article, no harm was intended.

Warrensburg is...

-Hinckley in your boots, Hinckley in your bunk, Hinckley in your food, Hinckley in your clothes.

-A 10" DBH, clear boled, straight, healthy, tall, well-formed Hophornbeam.

-Every bar from the Wilderness Inn to Mothers, all in one night.

-Tipping over the raft.

-Some zero doing timber wolf howls every night.

-Whistling at 6:30 a.m. in the dorm and wondering why everyone wants to cut your throat.

-Keeping at 25-pound snapping turtle in a footlocker.

-The deviates of dorm one.

-Having Dr. Lea's son on your volleyball team.

-Chris Patterson laughing.

-Everyone imitating Chris Patterson laughing.

-Reading Playboy and comics, instead of handouts, notes, or textbooks.

-Opening your lunch and finding your peanut butter and jelly sandwich has two inches of peanut butter and no jelly.

-Finding the difference between French toast and pancakes—the corners.

-Home cooking—if your home is a cave.

-The smell of Old Woodsman—on everything.

-Eating red efts.

-Gary Salmon steering and John Hastings working the pedals on the truck.
Rotunda Revision

A few months hence, instead of Bray Hall rotunda being besieged by ladders and workmen, we will be greeted with a color scheme of Black walnut and Inca red. The dominant feature in this new setting will be a modern light fixture hanging from the ceiling which many have already seen evidence of. The new switchboard being installed will be back against the stairs and will be used as an information desk primarily for outside callers. So following tradition, students will take their inquiries to 107 Bray. No more will student steps resound through the rotunda of Bray, as the octagon in the center is to be carpeted. The furniture introduced last year will follow its predecessor in leaving the rotunda and will be replaced by more contemporary furnishings, which will be compatible with the color of the rotunda. Those students eagerly looking forward to these new developments will unfortunately have to wait awhile. Since the renovation of the rotunda is not State supported, it will not be finished for some time.

Of course, ideas or problems regarding all facets of the graduate student's life at the College is welcomed.
